Nature Tells You

As Many a Norway Reader Knows Too Well.

When the kidneys are sick,

Nature tells you all about it.

The urine is nature's calendar.

Infrequent or too frequent action;

Any urinary trouble tells of kidney ills.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney

ills.

Norway people to testify to this.

Mrs. Solon Moore, Tucker St., Norway, Me., says:—"About five years ago

I was troubled by kidney complaint.

My whole body seemed to be affected and during these spells the secretions from my kidneys were unnatural. I used many remedies, but received no benefit. I at last procured Doan's Kidney Pills from Stone's Drug Store and they proved to be an excellent remedy.

I am pleased to give this preparation my Humility.

If I may not a conqueror be,
I'll enjoy the victory
Of others, brave and strong.
And if life's joys are not for me
I'd bleed with sweetest love and see
Those who can sing her song.
If I've few pleasures of mine own,
Why, then, perfume, I seek the loan
Of borrowed happiness.
And with contented heart and mind,
In others' joys my blessings find.—
For sympathy can bless.
Tho' others may more sweetly sing
The praises of their Heavenly King
When they their voices lift.
Yet I can know and understand
The sweetness of their music, and I'm glad to feel their gift.
With peace and sunshine all my days,
I'd make of life a hymn of praise.—
Mine is the better part.
The gift Thou hast bestowed on me
Is greater than all others be.
A humbly thank thee, LORD.
CORA M. W. GREENLEAF.

The Fairest Rose.

The sun is brightly shining,
The day is fair to see,
The roses in the garden
Are blooming sweet for me.
Yet in them I see no beauty
No pleasures from them fall.
My heart is early yearning
For the fairest rose of all.
For the frost stole through the garden
Week or so ago;
And snatched for ever from me,
All pleasures here below.
The roses are the better part,
To see their fragrant
To see their partial eyes.
In a fairer garden's blooming
Neath eternal summer skies.
L. E. C.

In Memoriam.

With loyal hearts we bring
To thee, love's offering,
Our soldiers' history.
The shrine of memory,
The Nation's treasury,
Of woe and glory,
Thy lowly bed.
By all the people blessed,
Full honor, guards thy rest
And ever live,
Thy war clouds rise no more,
And on life's happier shore,
Thou art forever more,
Of Peace shall rise.
We pledge ourselves anew,
Land of the free and
My these green mounds.
May all that stands for truth,
Strive in exalted quest,
And, Right's own fearless youth
In thee be found.

I suffered with Sciatica Rheumatism and was under the doctors' care a long time. The only relief I had was when morphine was injected.
As a last resort I tried your TERPENE CAM-PHOR COMPOUND, and within 48 hours I began to feel better. In a few days I was able to resume my duties as a fireman. I am pleas-

Keen Scented Deer.
Under the most favorable atmospheric conditions deer can scent a man at the distance of a mile and a half; if he is smoking the range may be increased to two miles. They have been known to refuse to cross a man's track more than four hours after he had passed, but rain may destroy the scent in ten minutes.—St. James' Gazette.

Falling Hair.
Stop it in Two Weeks. Ask Frank Kimball, Proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store,
About Parisian Sage.

Hair falls out because the dandruff germs dig into the hair roots and sap them of their vitality. They appropriate the natural nourishment that supplies life and luster to the hair.
To stop falling hair you must kill the germs. Parisian Sage is guaranteed by Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, to kill dandruff germs, banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp, or money back. If your hair is thinning out Parisian Sage will promote a new growth. Clever women use it because it makes the hair brilliant and beautiful and is not sticky or greasy.

BROWN ROT CONQUERED.

Belief That Worst Foe of Stone Fruit
Growers Is Under Control.

The Rural New Yorker says that brown rot, the most destructive fungous disease known to the peach or-chardist, has finally been put under control. J. H. Hale of Georgia and Connecticut paid his respects to the brown rot disease in the following terms: "The brown rot is so great a factor for evil in the raising of peaches for the market that in a few years more it would have accomplished the complete failure of my orchard plant in the state of Georgia. We can master or control every other enemy of the peach by up to date methods and precautions, but until now we have had no weapon that would touch the brown rot fungus." And then he continued to say that "the use of the self boiled lime sulphur spray as a foliage treatment for the peach tree, recently discovered by W. M. Scott of the United States department of agriculture, alone would swing the future status of my fortune from failure to success."

The importance of this spray to Mr.
Hale reaches to every other peach grower in the country, with somewhat less force, except perhaps, to orchardists in the arid regions of the west where the climatic conditions are unfriendly to the career of the destructive fungus. In the early peach section of Georgia the work of Mr. Scott means the restoration of prosperous peach growing, where recently the industry has had to be abandoned solely on account of brown rot. Gradually in the past fifteen years the peach belt has been pushed farther south into the humid regions of Georgia for the

BROWN ROT OF PEACH.

[Thin the fruit, destroy the mummies, spray with self boiled lime sulphur and arsenate of lead. Directions given in circular of Virginia agricultural experiment station.]

sake of producing earlier fruit. It is here that the rot has worked the most utter ruin.
While in general it is true that the coastal plains are hardest hit, it is a fact that wherever there are stone fruits raised in abundance there is brown rot present, waiting only the awakening touch of the friendly dampness to bring it to life, when in a few days it will devour a large part or all of the profits of the orchard. In a recent year D. M. Wertz of Waynesboro, Pa., a large orchardist located in the mountain region, where peach trees are assumed to be comparatively safe from brown rot, lost twenty carloads, or about one-third of his crop, from a sudden outbreak of the fungus.

A man is not master of his farm unless he has a familiarity with each acre's value and each acre's ability. It is useless in these days of high priced land to bother with average yields. It is not wise to wait until compulsion causes one to take care of the fertility of the soil.

Feeding Mangels.
The use of roots and especially mangels for dairy cows is still much practiced in many portions of the United States and Canada. The English farmers say that mangels should not be fed until they have been stored about three months for the reason that during the period of storing the mangel gains much in sugar.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Chemicals With Manure.
This is the way some of them use manure when fertilizer is to go on the crop: A load of manure is put in the spreader and thirty to forty pounds of the chemicals scattered over it. The result is that the whole thing is evenly scattered.—Rural New Yorker.

The Way With Weeds.
Possession is said to be nine points of law. This is certainly true of weeds. When they once get possession of a field it takes about nine times the labor to get rid of them than would be needed if they had been held in check from the start.

How to Care For the Piano.
Some one says that in winter, when the fires are going, the piano gets too dry and that it is a good idea to keep a plant in the room. The plant kept in the room with the piano will require more water than a plant kept in any other part of the house.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

"On the death of Brother John D. Horri, who passed to a higher life, May 4, 1911. WHEREAS, it has pleased our Heavenly Father to permit the messenger of death, with its fast shadow and attending sorrow, to again visit our lodge and remove from our circle our Brother, John D. Horri, therefore be it resolved, That we have by the death of our Brother, lost a true and faithful member of our order, who was always ready to do all in his power to advance the welfare of all its members; and our sincere wish is that we may do our duty as faithfully as he has done."

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased Brother as a token of our love and respect; a copy sent to the Norway Advertiser, and a copy sent to the local and one inscribed on the records of this lodge, and our charter draped in mourning thirty days.

SOUTH PARIS.

crime add laws have been broken; but we as a nation must have law and the people must obey these laws.

"We cannot expect a law to be enforced if it hinders the progress of man, and practice it, I beg of you, among your fellow men. The sentiments found in Pres. Lincoln's Gettysburg speech must be followed and truth must reign and truth must win."

"A day will come when all the boys and girls must stop and meditate on these subjects which we are speaking of today, instead of indulging in games of base ball and the different sports, that is not what Memorial day is for."

"Men fought for the flag and died for the flag, for Old Glory stood for liberty, freedom, justice and home, and if there ever comes a day when it does not stand for this, let them all be buried."

"It is not liberty when foreigners can be qualified to vote after being in this country only a short time, when the women in this country have never had the opportunity and are much better fitted than many of a man. 6,300,000 names are written in the columns of the unemployed list and something is radically wrong. This is not freedom. Machines and all kinds of devices are used to do away with labor for the benefit of a few but to the injury of many, who could earn an honest living. The Declaration of Independence came by the cry of humanity and it was the same that sent the men to the South and now may your cry be for the suffering humanity, truth be your shield and freedom your weapon of defense. There must be a place in the world for the many starving children."

"Lincoln once said he dreamed the day of graft and monopoly more than the Civil war. I don't believe the time will come when those wrongs shall be righted until the women have the right to defend that which belongs to them. (Applause.)"

"Who brought this old Ship of State back to harbor? The boys, yes, the boys, for the army was mostly boys, and now the nation can well assist you in your declining years. I had rather sleep in the grave of a private soldier than to rest in the grave of a Rockefeller or Harriman."

"May Heaven's blessing be upon you and when you are mustered into the ranks beyond may you receive a crown of life."

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. T. McWhorter.

BETHEL.

Memorial Service.

A union Memorial service was held in the Congregational church, Sunday. A union choir furnished the music. Rev. Mr. Banghart, pastor of the Methodist church, read the scripture. Rev. J. H. Little, chaplain of the department of Maine G. A. R., offered prayer, and Rev. Mr. Curtis, pastor of the Congregational church, delivered the sermon, which was a fine presentation of thoughts appropriate for the day.

The church was decorated with the National colors and flags.

The members of the G. A. R. were assisted by the Sons of Veterans, the Relief Corps and a few of the Ladies of the G. A. R.

The church was well filled with an attentive and appreciative audience.

The three pastors take turns in supplying the pulpit of the Union church at West Bethel.

The showers of last week laid the dust and helped the growing vegetation. The trees and fields seem as forward as in mid June of some years.

J. H. Little gave the Memorial Day oration in Richmond, where he was formerly settled over the Universalist church, and where he was commander of John Merrill Post.

Years of Suffering

Catarrh and Blood Disease—Doctors Failed to Cure.

Miss Mabel P. Dawkins, 1214 Lafayette St., Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "For three years I was troubled with catarrh and blood disease. I tried several doctors and a dozen different remedies, but none of them did me any good. A friend told me of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took two bottles of this medicine and was as well and strong as ever. I feel like a different person and recommend Hood's to any one suffering from catarrh."

The Theatre.

The theatrical company consisted of four little girls, Grace, Gertrude, Etta and Ada, but they did not seem little to themselves then, especially Grace and Etta, the oldest ones, who had read many a novel by Mary J. Holmes and Mrs. E. D. N. Southworth.

This particular evening they have met at Grace and Gertrude's house and were to play their latest "theatre" as they called it.

All took part in the "theatre" of course there was no audience, but nevertheless they had a curtain, an old shawl, stretched across the corner of the bedroom and the clothes press was used as a dressing room.

When they could be had "grown-up" dresses were worn by the women in the "theatre" and occasionally "pale" pants and coat were donned by the male characters when an unusually realistic performance was to be given.

The plot of the "theatre" for this particular evening was:—A beautiful young lady, the heroine, had a noble, handsome and brave lover who wooed her secretly, as did Romeo Juliet, for the stern father of the heroine objected to his daughter's marrying and leaving his house. Of course there was the beautiful heroine's mother, meek and indulgent, in league with her daughter yet greatly fearing her husband's wrath should he find out about the daughter's lover.

The clandestine courtship went on to the climax when the father and the young, ardent lover were to meet, then there was to be, of course, "towering wrath" on the father's part while the brave youth was not to quail under the fearful "torrent of words" but to answer with as much high spirit as the father, claiming the beautiful maiden in defiance to the "whole world!"

The words of the play were made up as the play went along, and there were of course many interruptions of laughter in spite of the tragic character of the drama.

This evening considerable refreshments were in order consisting of apples, cider, popcorn, etc. The cider was down cellar in a barrel but the company adjourned occasionally to bring up some and mix with soda to see it foam.

The players became hilarious and gave out as the apples, popcorn and cider disappeared.

The meek wife and mother in the play was unmistakably the reverse of meekness, while the beautiful daughter gazed where she should have sighed and wept.

The ardor of the contact between the infuriated parent and the lover was of such earnestness and high spirit interrupted by such unseemly laughter from the mother and daughter that all at once a real, stern parent stepped in on the scene and demanded to know, in a tone of voice which did not create laughter among the players, what they were up to, also adding, as she addressed her own children, "Girls, you can stop," and "Etta and Ada better go home now."

Many years have passed since the night of the "theatre" in the little bedroom and the players are all grown up and taking a real part in the great drama of life—all except one—the gentlest of them all, who became weary before the play had begun and a sed on to her "lone home," leaving the other three to play without her.

HOW TO MAKE A HOTBED.

It Takes a Little Work, but It Means Early Vegetables.

Why not try a hotbed this year? See if you cannot be ahead of every one in the block with first vegetables. Takes a little labor at the start and a bit of watching afterward, but the returns justify everything you do.

Your hotbed should be on the south side of a building or fence, on well drained ground. Dig a pit a little larger than your hotbed frame and from one and a half to two feet deep. If the bed is to be permanent the walls of the pit should be lined with brick, stone or concrete. From one to two feet of manure should be put into this pit and well packed. The amount depends upon the time of year the bed is made. The earlier the bed is built the more manure is required.

The frame should be rested on top of the pit and a filling made around the bed. Four to seven inches of rich soil should be laid over the top of the bed. The frame should be six feet wide and twelve feet long. The front side of the bed should be six or eight inches high, while the back should be about a foot higher. If the bed is permanent the frame should be made of two inch stuff; otherwise common boards will do. Glass sashes are preferable for a cover, although a hotbed made in the last part of March may be covered with muslin and give satisfaction. One advantage in muslin is that there is less danger of overheating the soil from the too rapid fermentation.

The temperature of the hotbed will be very high at first. Wait until it has fallen to nearly 75 degrees before planting the seed. A thermometer should be used for reading the temperature. Never let the temperature of the hotbed get above 90 degrees. Give the bed plenty of fresh air by raising the cover and keep the soil moist. Do not wet it too much or it will burn out and prevent the full development of the plants.

When growing plants for transplanting the hotbed should be made about the second week in February. If radishes and lettuce are to be grown in the bed and are not to be transplanted the bed may be made in the last part of January. All hotbeds, whether covered with glass or muslin, should have some sort of extra covering for cold days or nights. Straw mats or old carpet do very well for this.

HOW TO GROW CELERY.

Much Work Involved Though Cultivation Is Simple.

Cultivating celery, which is perhaps our foremost salad vegetable, is very simple, though it involves much work. Seed should be sown in frames or cool greenhouses three months before setting out the plants, which should be done in the early part of July. The amateur gardener may obtain the plants all ready to set out. They should be put in rows six inches apart. A moist peat soil is to be preferred, though celery can be grown in clay or even a sandy soil with proper fertility and drainage. The old method of planting celery in a trench is no longer used to any extent. A good arrangement of the plants is to alternate early and late varieties in successive rows. The early varieties can be blanched between boards and removed, after which the soil is available for blanching the later varieties.

The two important methods of blanching are, first, the use of boards placed on both sides of the row and, second, packing the soil about the plants. In small gardens blanching may be accomplished by wrapping paper about the bunches. Blanching may be begun on the earlier varieties in September and on the later kinds just before the usual time for frost.

How to Keep Ferns Fresh.

Many women complain that they cannot keep the pretty little ferns purchasable for display in drawing rooms in fancy pots because they fade so quickly and die. This is because they are not managed properly. Twice a week they should be taken to the kitchen sink and the leaves well washed and stood under the faucet, which should be allowed to drip water upon them until they are quite refreshed. After this the pots should be laid on their sides and allowed to drain. If treated in this way they will keep fresh and look pretty all the winter. Fouse plants of any kind must not be watered too often in cold weather or the plants die.

It Was Both.

"What do you think of old Uncle Peter devising all his money for the erection of a mausoleum over his remains?" said the first needy relative. "Awful!" replied the second. "It's just a willful waste."

"Hub! I call it a wasteful will!"

Mrs. Truman Perry, formerly of this town but now of New Gloucester, is visiting friends in town. Mrs. Perry will very soon remove to Cumberland.

An accident occurred Monday of last week on the Bridgton & Saco River R. R. The train ran off the track near Perley's Mills and the engineer was quite badly injured.

Memorial Services were observed Sunday by John A. Logan Post at the Congregational church. Rev. C. N. Davis was assisted by Rev. J. B. Coy of Lewiston. The regular church choir furnished special music for the occasion.

Sunday, June 18, the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will observe their memorial day. Services will be held in the I. O. O. F. hall, after which they will decorate the graves of deceased members. The services will be public.

A large and attentive audience gathered in the Congregational church, Memorial day at 10.30 a. m. and listened to the following program:

Music rendered in the sunshine. Choir. Scripture reading. Rev. J. B. Coy. Prayer. Gertrude M. Sawyer. Responsive duet and chorus. A letter from home. Comrade W. L. Grover. Lincoln's address at Gettysburg. Read by Miss Sawyer.

Columbia's sons. Henry C. Houston. Thanks. Comrade Grover. Singing. America. Choir and Congregation. Benediction. Rev. C. N. Davis.

The regular church choir was assisted by George Flint and they furnished excellent music. The response to the prayer, "A letter from home," was beautifully sung by Mrs. Louise Leathe and Walter Dudley with full choir on the refrain; organist, Ada D. Flint.

Mrs. Lewis Williams and son Whitley of Brooklyn, N. Y., have come for the summer, also Mrs. Ritchie. They made the trip in Miss Ritchie's automobile.

WEST PARIS.

Memorial Observance.

Memorial day was fittingly observed as follows. Children and citizens met at the Grange Hall, at 9.30 a. m. and formed a march to the cemetery led by a drum corps which consisted of two pieces, the snare drum played by Ralph Bessie, and brass drum by Geo. Marshall, following them were three Civil War veterans and one Spanish American veteran and about one hundred school children from the five districts in the north part of the town and citizens. At the cemetery America was sung by the children, prayer offered by Rev. L. W. Raymond, with a response by the choir, then Commander Chas. Dunham directed eighteen young ladies to as many soldiers' graves and each was decorated with a wreath and flag. The line of march was again formed, marched back to the Grange Hall dining room where a picnic dinner was enjoyed by all who participated. At 1.30 p. m. the following program was carried out:

Quartet, Our honored dead. Choir. Mrs. Flavin, Mrs. White, Mrs. Chase. Accompanist, Mrs. Ward.

Benediction. Rev. L. W. Raymond. Prayer. Rev. H. C. Young. Reading. Memorial. Iona Littlehale. Columbia, the gem of the ocean. Choir.

Recreation. Inez Elwell. Reading. The blue and the gray. Mrs. Kidion. Repeated for encore.

Remarks. Rev. L. W. Raymond. Remarks. H. G. Brown, Esq. Remarks on the part of the town.

The above program was well carried out and very interesting and was largely due to the perseverance of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Chase, who had it in charge. The remarks by the pastors emphasized the duty of all and especially of the teachers toward the perpetuation of Memorial day and that it was instituted to the memory of those who fought for liberty from degradation and sin; and through their victory the education of the nation had been uplifted instead being brought down to a lower standard by the degraded slave traffic.

Mr. Brown's remarks were mostly reminiscent of the war. He is not a veteran himself but had two brothers who gave their lives in this conflict.

It was thought best to have a local organization for this part of the town to make the necessary arrangements for the observation of Memorial day for the future and a committee of three were appointed to act in regard to this. James E. Tuell was elected chairman and W. W. Dunham and A. A. Littlehale were the other two. And it is hoped that when another year rolls around the arrangements will be made and well advertised for Decoration day here.

HENRY M. TUELL.

Henry M. Tuell, an aged resident of the town of Paris, died in the insane hospital in Augusta last Friday morning.

Mr. Tuell began to fall in mental more than a year ago, and last December was taken to Augusta where he continued to fall.

The funeral service was held from his late home Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. D. A. Ball of the Universalist church. Interment was in the West Paris cemetery.

Mr. Tuell was the son of Abiathar and Charlotte (Holmes) Tuell and was born in the north part of the town known as Tuelltown, where he lived his entire life until a few years ago. He sold his farm and moved to this village into a new house on Main street that was built for them.
